

One of the key elements of a democracy is to have a wide range of choices. This is no more apparent than here in the Puget Sound area of the State of Washington where Seattle Community Access Network-SCAN TV consistently brings us news and perspectives that are not available anywhere else. How can we make informed choices if we only have one source or view point concerning issues?